

The Clinton Shift and “Ethnic Conflict”

Media, Foreign Policy and the Myth- Making of Ethnic Conflict in the War of Bosnia-Herzegovina, 1992-1994

Thesis presented for Master of Arts
Program in Peace and Development Studies
Universitat Jaume I, Castellón, Spain
July 2001

Christopher S. Fitz

Advisor: Professor of Anthropology Nancy Ries, Colgate University

Acknowledgements

First and foremost I thank Nancy Ries for her enduring support and her belief in me through the entirety of this lengthy process. If she lost hope in my ability to complete it, I never perceived it.

Thanks also to Theresa Trivison for her tedious and otherwise thankless assistance with research compilation. It was certainly fruitful!

Thanks to Žarko Puhovski whose inspiration and support – though perhaps indirectly – inspired this piece.

Thanks also to Chip Gagnon and Thomas Cushman for helping me to locate myself in the vast English-language literature of post-“Bosnia war” academia.

Thanks to Vicent Martínez Guzmán, Eloisa Nos and David Bloomfield for continued encouragement in my extended work with the EPD program.

And extra special thanks especially to David and Ruth Fitz, Jeeyeon Kim, Curt Rowland, the Camp Eder community and so many countless others whose immeasurable support made the writing possible.

Ultimately, this work came out of the immense respect I gained for the generous friends I came to know while living and working in Zagreb in 1996. Having met such honest, earnest, insightful, generous people, I would be an ungrateful friend to write something that did not heed their insights and honor their efforts to extend the circle of brother- and sisterhood to so many travelers and neighbors...like me.

C.S. Fitz

July 2001

Contents

Introduction: Looking for the Right Lens	1
What should we do in...Hrvatska?
“Ethnic Conflict” Re-examined	6
Finding a Mirror	12
Chapter 1: The Rise of Ethnic Conflict Discourse	15
The Clinton Shift
Plain Old Politics: An Alternative to “Ethnic Conflict” In Understanding the Breakup of Yugoslavia	20
The Rise of “Ethnic Conflict” in US News Media Discourse, 1977-1992	30
Chapter 2: Spinning Ethnic Conflict, An Overview	39
Time Magazine Research Methodology	40
Quantitative Findings	41
Qualitative Overview	45
Title Overview: From Barbarism to Intervention	46
Section Overview: Toward Routinization	47
Typological Overview: More Routinization	50
Images Overview: Type and Composition	53
Conclusion of Image Sets: Abetting “Ethnic” Violence	57
Conclusion: Collecting the Strands	58
Chapter 3: Spinning Ethnic Conflict, Article Analysis	60
“The Killing Goes On” by Ron Haviv photographer	61
“Why Do They Keep Killing?” by Jill Smolowe	62
“Chronic Case of Impotence” by George J. Church	64
“Splinter, Splinter Little State” by George J. Church	67
Summary of 1992 Coverage: March - August	72
1994 Coverage, January - June: Neo-Primordial “Ethnic Conflict,” From Discourse to Reality	76
A New Discourse: War Crimes, War Criminals and the Language of Genocide Avoidance	79

“Ethnic Cleansing” and a Skeptical Neo-primordial Ethnic Discourse	81
Coverage of the Rwanda Genocide, April-June 1994	84
Conclusion of Time Coverage of “Ethnic Conflict”	90
Chapter 4: Looking in the Mirror: Reflections of a US Discourse	94
Official Policy Discourse
The Damage Done: Practical Reflections on the News Media	100
Assessing “Ethnic Conflict” in the US: Theoretical Reflections	103
Reflections for an Academic Community	105
Purposeful Conclusions	108
Works Cited	109

Figures Represented

- 1.1 Articles with “Ethnic Conflict” in the Washington Post, p. 32.
- 1.2 Articles with “Ethnic Conflict” in 27 National Newspapers, p. 33.
- 1.3 Articles with “Ethnic Conflict” in the Washington Post and their Subject Foci, p. 34-35.
- 2.1 Comparison of Articles from Two Six-month Periods of Time, pp. 42-43.
- 2.2 Overview by Section of Full-Page Articles From Two Six-month Periods of Time magazine, p. 48.
- 2.3 Overview by Article Type and Section of Full-Page Articles In Two Six-month Periods of Time magazine, p. 51.
- 2.4 Overview of Space Used by Articles and Images in Time during Two Six-month Periods, p. 54.
- 2.5 Breakdown of Images appearing in Time during Two Six-month Periods covering Bosnia-Herzegovina and Rwanda, p. 55.

Appendices (in order)

- 1.1 Time Magazine Articles on Bosnia-Herzegovina and the FRY, March-August 1992
- 1.2 Time Magazine Articles on Bosnia-Herzegovina and the FRY, January-June 1994
- 1.3 Time Magazine Articles on Bosnia-Herzegovina and the FRY, Full Article Overview
- 1.4 Time Magazine Articles on Bosnia-Herzegovina and the FRY, Associated Articles
- 1.5 Time Magazine Articles: Image Type Code Key
- 2.1 Index of State Department Archives on Ethnic Conflict and Bosnia-Herzegovina, 1993-1995